Staff Changes Made at Local C.P.R. Depot

Leo Gelinas, Night Operator, Transferred to Bow Island; Night Wire Service to be Maintained States Agent W. Pettifor

Staff changes were made at the beginning of the week at the local C.P.R. depot. Night operator Leo Gelinas was transferred to Bow Island and Arnold Vornbrock who had been day assistant has been assigned the job vacated by Operator Gelinas. Mr. Vornbrock's successor is Beverly Maretta.

As Mr. Vornbrock is not an experienced operator some anxiety had been felt locally that the wire service during the evenings would be curtailed and a protest was made by Mayor Fred Antrobus and union secretary Mack Stigler to assistant superintendent A. E. Hartley who was in town at this week-end.

They were assured however that the wire service would not be curtailed and that service would be maintained from 8 a.m. to the departure of the passenger train at 2 a.m. the following morning, thus an 18-hour daily wire service was being given the Coleman public.

Night agent Vornbrock, while only a young man in the service, is not quite as efficient as his predecessor, but will as a few months become proficient as the result of constant practice. Station agent Pettifor has installed telephone service to his home and is in constant touch with the station.

It is stated that the removal of Mr. Gelinas from Coleman was purely a manpower necessity. The company must distribute its experienced men as best it can and Coleman last week had two experienced operators while some stations were serving the public with inexperienced operators.

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Raymond Celebrate 25th Anniversary

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Raymond gathered at their home in West Coleman on Saturday evening to help them celebrate the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The evening was a merry one as the guests wished the honored couple many more years of married happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond were also the recipients of many beautiful pieces of silverware.

Mr. Raymond came from Montreal to Alberta and Mrs. Raymond is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Morris, of West Coleman. They have resided in Coleman twenty-four years of the twenty-five years of married life. They were married in Coleman and resided for almost a year thereafter at Lac la Biche before returning to Coleman.

Horse Drags Man To Death

Isaac Radford, 68, provincial forestry lookout man at Castle River, 30 miles south of Coleman, was fatally injured, Wednesday, June 14, when he was dragged through the forest by his horse. He died en route to hospital and the body was taken to Pincher Creek.

Radford, on his way to the look-out post, stopped for a moment to watch a provincial government bulldozer at work. His horse became frightened, jumped a bank and unseated Radford. His foot caught in the stirrup of the saddle and he was dragged through the brush and kicked in the head by the animal. He also suffered shoulder and leg fractures and bruises. Finally the sole of his shoe came off and this freed him. He was picked up and immediately preparations were made to take him to hospital. He died before he could reach hospital.

It is understood that Radford, formerly of Magrath district, had been in the forestry service for over a year. Efforts are being made to reach relatives.

CARD OF THANKS
Cpl. and Mrs. A. D. Wragg wish to thank many friends for the floral tributes and cards sent to them during their recent bereavement in the loss of their daughter, Marlene Selma.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL, SEPT. 18

The opening gun of the Salvation Army Home Front Appeal will be fired on September 18, 1944, and for twelve days thereafter a concentrated campaign will be conducted to raise one million dollars.

In 400 towns, cities and villages 30,000 volunteers will gear themselves to all-out co-operation with 1500 Salvation Army Officers in making the appeal a success. Every Corps in Canada is taking part in this national endeavour, except those centers where the Army is a participating agent in a local community chest or united appeal.

Girl Guide Have Badge Night; Awards Made

Friday evening brought the close of the season for the 1st Coleman Girl Guide Company. As our last evening was spent in presenting badges, and entertaining our friends. This year the Campfire theme was carried out, following the Badge Presentation enrolment and Brownie enrolment. The following badges were presented:

To Collect Used Clothing Next Week

To Aid Citizens of Yasinovatsa: Asked to Get Bundles Ready.

Pass citizens will be solicited next week for new and used clothing that are clean and in good repair by the Pass Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship.

The drive will start next Monday morning and continue till all homes in each town have been canvassed. The clothing will then be packed and shipped to the 7,000-odd citizens of Yasinovatsa, a city in Russia whose population is similar in size to that of the combined Pass towns. The clothing should be tied in bundles. Dodgers have been printed and will be distributed throughout the Pass, telling the citizens just what is expected of them.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. William Knight on Thursday, June 15, a son.

Bob Watson, RCA, spent the week-end with his mother Mrs. E. Watson.

Miss Shirley Clary, of Vancouver, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Clary.

SITE OF UNITED CHURCH SUMMER CAMP AT WATERTON

The camp committee of Lethbridge Presbytery of the United church reports good progress of the drive being made for funds to improve the newly acquired camp site at Waterton Lakes. The committee has appealed for at least $3000. for the immediate construction of dining pavilion and kitchen. Of that amount $1000 has been received and a further $800 promised. Some of the contributing communities are: Macleod $300, Milk River, $250, Berens $300, Taber $400.

Construction of the dining pavilion and kitchen has been commenced. The former will be 24x48 feet with hardwood floor and fine fire place; the latter 16x16 feet and will be constructed according to specifications of Park authorities. It is expected to have this main building completed in time for the boys' camp which opens July 17. Many of the boys and girls of Coleman hope to attend these camps.

Curlers, Your Attention, Please!

At the close of last season it was agreed by all members of Coleman curling club that a new arena was in dire necessity if clean ice was to be enjoyed and the local club have the privilege of playing host to the Crows Nest Pass bonspiel in 1944-45.

To-day a new site has been levelled and casings placed in position to work the concrete pillars. This work has been accomplished by only a few men. They cannot be expected to do all the work. It requires the aid of ALL curlers. Night after night it is the usual half dozen men who turn out to put in an evening's work.

The work must be done this summer and fall. The mines are having a few idle days and the opportunity is afforded curlers to come down to the new site and put in a few hours work. Your help is needed, urgently needed, if a new arena is to be opened this winter.

Men who wish to give the curlers a hand on odd occasions will find a warm welcome at the new site.

LINE DRAG STRAIGHTENING PORTION OF RIVER

A line drag has been at work between Coleman and Blairmore, deepening the Old Man river. It has also deepened that part of Nez Perce creek running west of East Coleman.

At the present time it is busy changing the course of the Old Man river immediately west of the bridge that joins the two sections of East Coleman. At this part of the river the water runs in a semi-circular channel. The drag line is cutting a channel straight through and in a few days the river will run in a straight channel.

Winners at the Rebekah whist drive last week were Mrs. H. Urwin, Mrs. Melville Cornett and Mrs. J. Urwin.

COLEMAN JOURNAL UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

Notice is hereby given that the Coleman Journal has been sold by H. T. Halliwell to Thomas Holstead and Alex Balloch. Owned by Mr. Halliwell since 1927, who is now publisher of the Macleod Gazette, the purchase of The Journal is retroactive to Feb. 1, 1944. Mr. Holstead has been with the Journal since 1921, and Mr. Balloch since 1932, therefore both are well acquainted with local conditions and community activities.

In making the change the former owner expresses appreciation of the support accorded The Journal during his almost 17 years ownership, and of the friendships formed and goodwill extended. For Messrs. Holstead & Balloch we trust the same measure of support will be accorded in their efforts to serve the community through the mirror of its many and varied activities—the local newspaper.

Yours sincerely,
H. T. HALLIWELL.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE AT THE GRAND UNION

Carpenters have been busy during the past week making improvements at the Grand Union hotel. The frigidaire in the basement has been moved upstairs, alongside the coffee kitchen, where it is more convenient for the cooks.

It is planned to redecorate the banquet room and to box-in the water pipes. Should conditions warrant the banquet room may be extended several feet to accommodate larger banquets.

Miss A. Yuill Honored by Red Cross

Awarded Honorary Membership In Red Cross Society; Presentation Made By Red Cross President J. A. McLeod.

A very fine honor was bestowed on an esteemed citizen and enthusiastic Red Cross worker at the Freds Antrobus' song recital on Wednesday evening when Miss Anne Yuill was presented with a medal emblematic of honorary membership in the Canadian Red Cross Society by Alberta Division President J. A. McLeod.

Miss Yuill was entirely unaware of the honor to be bestowed upon her Wednesday evening and upon being called from the floor of the hall by local President W. Dutil, the audience gave her a great round of applause.

Lt.-Col. D. H. Tomlinson, Red Cross commissioner, addressed the audience and told them of the honor won by Miss Yuill. She had organized her Junior Red Cross in 1923 and it was now the oldest branch in the province. He called upon President J. A. McLeod to make the presentation.

Miss Yuill stated Coleman should feel justly proud of Miss Yuill for the honor she had won and stated that if all the people of Coleman were good citizens, there would be no war raging today. She had taken people of various nationalities and blended them as one, making them good citizens, and many of her former students were fighting in the front lines of today's epic battles.

Hon. Treasurer Miss Mary Pinkham presented Miss Yuill with a corsage of flowers.

The citation on Miss Yuill's award read:

For honorary membership in the Canadian Red Cross Society, Miss Anne Yuill, Coleman, Alberta.

Miss Anne Yuill, teacher at Cameron school, Coleman, Alberta, has rendered outstanding service in Junior Red Cross work since the year 1922. She organized a branch of the Junior Red Cross at the Cameron school in 1922, and her branch has been in operation every year up to and including 1944.

She has also taken great interest in the work being done by the Coleman senior Red Cross branch, and in 1942 and 1943 gave voluntary service in the Junior Red Cross department of the provincial office during the period of her summer holidays. Amongst the students in her school there were many nationalities, and through her complete understanding of the ideals of Junior Red Cross, she was able to inculcate the principles of good citizenship, with the result that many of her former pupils are now serving Canada in the armed forces.

Miss Yuill has shown great interest in assisting the parents of her former pupils to obtain information of their relatives through the International Red Cross. For over twenty years she has given voluntary service to our Society and has done splendid work to further the interests of the Red Cross.

"S Day" To Be Featured in Coleman

Miss Canadas to Be Out in Force in Effort to Set New Record in Stamp Sales

"S Day" throughout Alberta will be Stamp Day as the Alberta Retail Merchants' Association, the 8,000 merchants and the thousands of Miss Canadas combine on Friday, June 30, to sell a record amount of war savings stamps.

In Coleman Mrs. L. S. Richards, supervisor of the Miss Canadas, plans on having all her girls out in uniform selling stamps in an effort to set a new record. Local merchants will co-operate in encouraging their customers to take their change in stamps.

Dr. McNally, deputy minister of Education for Alberta, will speak to the school children in a provincial-wide broadcast on June 30, the time to be announced later.

Very Fine Concert Given by Freda Antrobus

Near Capacity Audience in Attendance; Called Back on Stage Several Times by Applause Following Conclusion of the Program.

Unwilling to rise from their seats following the conclusion of the program, a near capacity audience applauded Freda and again to bring back Freda Antrobus on the stage to sing again, so enjoyable had her two-hour singing performance been.

The song recital was sponsored on Wednesday evening by Coleman Lions Club, Freda donating her talented services in order that the proceeds may be devoted to some worthy community activity of the Lions' choosing.

The program was very well balanced, the lighter songs blending well with the heavier ones and the old favorites, such as "Drink to me only" and "The loch of summer," etc., which all knew, kept the interest high throughout the recital.

Freda's charming personality, plus a soft vibrant soprano voice, won her a host of new admirers during the evening. The scheduled program called for twenty songs, yet she sang well beyond the limit to the delight of a very appreciative audience.

George Coutts, of Toronto, was piano accompanist, and his talented performance added to the favorable comment from many in the large audience.

Following the conclusion of the performance, Freda was brought onstage on the wings, followed by two little Misses, who with the aid of Lion President Fred Guerdar, presented Freda with two bouquets of flowers. Mr. Guerdar thanked Freda for her splendid voice and the appreciation of the audience for a most delightful concert.

Lions Elect 1944-45 Slate of Officers

A. Balloch, President; Walter Pettifor, Secretary; Rev. W. E. Brown Gives First Public Address

An exceptionally good attendance of Lion members sat down to the supper-meeting on Monday evening, with Lion President Fred Guerdar presiding.

Secretary John Van Maaron reported that a small cheque had been received from the children's hospital, Toronto, as overpayment of a bill for the young Chalmers boy. It was revealed that Mrs. Chalmers and son were now in New York.

Committee chairman Sid Short reported on the progress being made in sponsoring Freda Antrobus in a song recital on Wednesday, June 21. He stated that reserved seat tickets were enjoying an exceptionally good sale and if present ticket sales were maintained he had no doubt that the evening would be a great success. He lauded Freda for her thoughtfulness in endeavoring to do something for her home town. He remarked that it had been suggested that the Lions sponsor the construction of a kiddie pool in Coleman. Asked for discussion on the subject, many spoke in favor, bringing out some points that would have to be considered. Let us learn to abolish the loneliness and disunity of peace. The soldier is honored... let us see to it that as a civilian he is honored and given his rightful place."

He added that "Victory and a sure Peace is the only coin in which we can be repaid."

A new slate of officers for 1944-45 was elected and includes: A. Balloch, president; F. Abousaffy, first vice-president; S. C. Short, second vice-president; Dr. E. J. Liesemer, H. Hewitt, C. D. Bryers and Rev. G. A. Kestyls, directors; W. Pettifor, secretary-treasurer; S. Murdoch, talk-writer, and H. Weltons, Lion Tamer.

Rev. W. E. Brown was guest speaker and chose for his first public address in Coleman, the subject "Victory and the Peace."

He stated Victory would give us a second chance to exercise power in our world guided by the four freedoms contained in the Atlantic Charter. "For the Peace there must be Brotherhood. Let us learn to abolish the loneliness and disunity of peace. The soldier is honored... let us see to it that as a civilian he is honored and given his rightful place."

He added that "Victory and a sure Peace is the only coin in which we can be repaid."

Handicraft Work

Provides Many Persons With An Outlet For Creative Urge

Handicrafts are indispensable to the national economy even of such industrialized nations as Canada and the United States. Allan Eaton, director of arts and social work for the Russell Sage Foundation of New York, said in Toronto.

Addressing the 15th annual meeting of the Canadian Handicrafts Guild (Ontario), Mr. Eaton said handicrafts also have social, educational, therapeutic and esthetic values as well as providing many persons with an outlet for their creative urge.

Speaking particularly of crafts in rural areas, he told how in the United States country people were supplied with surplus raw cotton and taught to make their own mattresses. In the last two years more than 3,700,000 have been made by persons who did not have the money to buy them in the regular way.

The fact that so many residents of North America have come from Europe offers great possibilities in development of handicrafts. "If we can encourage them to retain the best of their traditions and build upon the things that are in the blood . . . we shall have the richest handicraft culture the western world has known."

New Jobs

Women In Britain Are Now Working On Bombs And Block Busters

Women of Britain not only are taking over men's jobs successfully these days—they're stepping into new jobs that neither men nor women have ever done before and making a success of them, too. The mightiest explosive known to British scientists is handled and processed by girls. They make the world's biggest bomb—the new 12,000 lb. "factory buster".

Their jobs demand high skill and accuracy. They work on vast, remote factory sites surrounded by "Danger Areas" notices. Each operative has a medical history chart. She is weighed at least once a week. Loss of weight indicates that the worker has absorbed fumes of the porridge-like mixture with which the heavy bombs are filled. Special lip-salve and anti-toxic make-up for the face are compulsory. They are applied in the factory "beauty parlor" before starting the day or night shift. Ninety per cent. of the employees in all these explosives plants are women.

HAVE GOOD IDEA

Under a wartime government ruling, Mexican motorists keep their cars idle one day a week. After motorists pick their favorite "motorless day", they are issued stickers showing the day selected.

Emeralds and rubies get their color from the same substance, chromium oxide.

The roseleaf plant, used for a fute substitute, has been known to grow two inches a day.

Close View "Human Torpedo"

The "human torpedo" with which the British sank an Italian cruiser in Palermo harbor is shown here being lowered over the side of a warship. The gadget actually is a submarine launch, carrying a torpedo warhead. Two men, wearing diving helmets, ride the thing as if aboard a motorcycle.

Britain's Rocket Ships

Fire Quantities Of Explosives More Quickly Than Warship Can

Rocket ships, developed as a result of the Dieppe raid of 1942, used in invasion of France, "discharge vast quantities of explosives onto beaches more quickly than has ever been done before by a warship," the British Information Services said. Use of the rocket ships was disclosed at Allied Expeditionary headquarters.

"The rocket ships were developed as a result of experiences in the Dieppe raid," the British Agency said. "The actual destruction they cause is not so great as in normal bombardment since there is no splinter, but a blast from these weapons has a terrific effect on the morale of personnel anywhere near the receiving end. Great navigation skill is needed to bring these ships to the place of action."

The ships, first used in the Sicily landings, were described as a British naval secret weapon.

SENT A COCONUT

Mrs. James Mould, of Wilshire, received a coconut from her soldier-husband serving overseas. The coconut came through the mail unopened with her name and address engraved on the shell.

Insect Life

They Greatly Exceed Any Other Form Of Life Today

Each year, during the summer, we are overwhelmed by the abundance of insects. There is no doubt that these creatures greatly exceed the number of other living animals of the world today.

A study of fossils proves that insects have an ancient origin. They are definitely known from the Carboniferous period, three hundred millions of years ago. By visiting the Royal Ontario Museum one may catch a glimpse of the insect life of the past. There one will find, exquisitely preserved in limestone, the gossamer-like forms of dragonflies, and entombed in bits of Baltic amber are the delicate remains of ants, bees, flies, locusts and beetles. Insects were abundant and widely distributed even in dim, distant days.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE POWER IN SIMPLE LIVING (Temperance Lesson)

Golden text: But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties nor with the wine which he drank. Lesson: Daniel 8:16, 19, 20. Devotional Reading: Psalm 128.

Nebuchadnezzar's Plan for Daniel and his Three Companions, Daniel 1:1-7. It was in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign (606 B.C.) that Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, first besieged Jerusalem and carried back to Babylon Jewish captives, together with some of the treasures of the temple. "Think of the land of Judah as an 'occupied' country, similar to France or Belgium or Czechoslovakia. The conquerors prevented revolt by arresting the leaders and holding them as 'hostages,' subject to death in case of sabotage." Among the captives were Daniel and the other youths named in verse 11.

The King of Babylon directed one of his officers to take Jewish youths of noble families who were especially fair and bright, and have them enter what has been called "The Prince's College of Babylon." For three years they were to receive education for the civil service. They were to be taught the language and learning of the Chaldeans. They were to be nourished with a portion of the food and wine served to the king himself.

A Wise Experiment, Daniel 1:8-13. Daniel firmly resolved that he would not live upon the king's dainties and wine, for he knew they were not good for him.

The young Israelite requested Ashpenez the officer in whose charge he was, to permit him and his three companions to refuse the food given. Though kindly disposed toward Daniel, the officer hesitated to grant his request. "Why should the king compare your faces with those of the other youths and notice that you are in poorer condition than they?" he questioned. "The king might think that I had enriched myself with what I had provided for you, and my life would be forfeited," he added.

Daniel had a plan which he knew would not get the officer into trouble, and he proposed to him that he should let his three companions eat pulse (herbs, Revised Version; vegetables, Moffatt's) and drink water for ten days, and then compare their faces with those of the youths who eat the king's dainties, and deal with us accordingly."

The Success of the Experiment, Daniel 1:14-16. Ashpenez yielded to Daniel's request, doubtless with many misgivings. At the end of the time suggested by Daniel the experiment proved successful. The four youths were found heavier and fairer than those who ate the king's food, and they were put permanently on their simple diet.

Plain Living and High Thinking, Daniel 1:17-20. God gave the four youths, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom.

Japs Were Strafed

Airmen Were Much Surprised At Results Obtained In Burma

Air support of troops on difficult country of northern Burma is often far more effective than pilots can tell.

Allied troops moving to blow up a bridge on a railway from Mandalay were threatened by Japanese detachments which began shelling from a nearby wood. Hurricanes were sent out to strafe the gunners and when they returned they were not brimming over with satisfaction. "We couldn't see anything in the way of results," they complained to the intelligence officer. "It looked to me like a waste of ammunition," said P.O. Harold Holland of Winnipeg.

Later, however, when the army intelligence reports came through, their operations were proved to have been outstandingly successful. "Good show," said the reports, "150 Japanese infantry were killed and wounded."

BRITISH RESTAURANT

Uttuxetel wonder if they have a record in their British Restaurant. Over 1,000 dinners a day are served and during the eighteen months the British Restaurant has been open they have not lost a knife, fork or spoon.

The Chinese probably first used gas for lighting by piping natural gas in bamboo tubes from salt mines.

It takes about 45 gallons of water to fill a bathtub of average size.

Scattering Pleasure

Growing Flowers For The Benefit Of The Pleasure

One hears from time to time of people with unusual hobbies. But one of the most interesting, most unusual, and from the standpoint of the public, most delightful of all hobbies is that of people who scatter flower-seeds along highways, in alleys and by railroad tracks. Returning later in the season, they see the fruits of their efforts in bloom here and there banishing drabness from what once were dingy and depressing surroundings. And if they don't retrace their steps to see the results of their efforts, they know that others will enjoy the results of their thoughtfulness.

It is only small, but, like many a smart effort, such a hobby gives a gratifying and worth-while return.—Halifax Herald.

After The War

Industry Officials Predict Short Sugar Supply For Several Years

Industry officials expect inadequate sugar supplies for several years after the war. Europe formerly produced some 10,000,000 tons annually, Java and the Philippines 2,500,000; but a large part of their refining facilities are believed destroyed.

There'll be lots of tea, with China expected to make up deficits that have occurred in India and Ceylon.

Cocoa supplies are expected to be light because of two types of cocoa diseases in West Africa and because unremunerative wartime operations have made growers apathetic.

Eight bells aboard ship may be 4 a.m., 8 a.m., noon, 4 p.m., 8 p.m., or midnight.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Luncheon At One-Thirty

By EDNA BLISS DRAKE

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Even the prospect of luncheon for sixty failed to shake Selma's Swedish composure that hot summer morning. She took the usual time to bathe and dress before she descended to the kitchen. On the back porch she gathered up a row of milk and cream bottles. It would be difficult to find room for them in the already over-crowded refrigerator, but the day was humid and they must be kept cold at any price.

"Mis' Sumners is c'n fine woman," she thought as she p'docked back and forth from porch to kitchen. "But I tank anybody's a fool to have parties in the country. I'd wait till winter back in town. No stores out here; always running short of butter; people lose road on way out; everybody late and always I bane on my feet in kitchen keeping things hot. Lucky we picked out the lobster last night!"

As she swung open the door of the large refrigerator she made a startling discovery. The butter was a soft mass and only water stood where ice cubes should have been. Evidently, during the hot, sultry night the electricity had been off for several hours!

Selma's broad face became absolutely expressionless. She pulled the larger pans of lobster from the shelves and scrutinized the pink and white delicacy closely in the early morning light. It looked all right and it smelled all right. Now that the current was on again should she add to Mis' Sumners' worries by telling her about the situation or should she keep the secret to herself? She debated the subject for a few minutes and finally decided to tell her employer. Something would have to be done about the butter anyway.

Bess Sumners threw on a negligee and hurried to the kitchen. "What on earth are we going to do, Selma?" she cried. "There's no time to get more lobster. Do you suppose it's spoiled?"

"Naw," replied Selma serenely. "I tank I try it on Ben! Before Bess could stop her she fed a huge portion to the aged dog who lay under the table. He ate it and wagged his tail expectantly.

"Selma," cried Bess angrily. "What a cruel thing to do! Poor old Ben's one of the family!"

Selma shrugged. "Dogs don't eat poison. I tank they know more than people!"

"Are you sure?" "Yes, ma'am! It won't hurt nobody. Ben knows!"

Bess recalled gruesome stories of people who had perished after feasting upon spoiled shellfish. On the other hand, the freshly boiled lobster had been placed in the ice box immediately after she and Selma had picked it out. Everything was functioning perfectly at midnight and the contents must have remained cool for several hours without the current.

She decided to risk it. "All right, Selma," she said briskly. "Don't say any more about it. Start the rolls and then we'll go ahead with the salad."

The thermometer climbed. Arriving guests exclaimed at the wisdom of a hostess who had had the foresight to place the tables on the porch, under the trees and in the coolness of a spacious hall. Oscillating fans provided comfort throughout the house. There was a tinkle of ice in glasses and the quiet, luxurious estate seemed like an oasis to the thirsty, perspiring throng.

Luncheon was served. Never had Selma and the extra maids seemed so efficient. Bess congratulated her on having engineered a perfect meal—flowers, foods, drinks and service. With a sigh of relief she organized the contract guests.

When the last guest was seated she slipped into the kitchen for a word with Selma. "You did a grand job," she announced happily. "It's positively the best luncheon I ever gave!"

Selma was sitting serenely at the table drinking coffee. She poured herself a fresh cup, added cream and sugar and took a trial sip before she spoke.

"The dog's dead!" she announced calmly.

"Dead!" cried Bess wildly. "Dead! When did he die? Why didn't you tell me about it?"

"Oh, about an hour ago. Maybe a little longer. You tank so much of him I couldn't bear to tell you." She drained her cup with much gusto. "I do like my coffee," she stated as Bess dashed frantically to the telephone.

The next hour was a nightmare. Ambulances arrived. Doctors, nurses and internes appeared by the score. Bess, Selma and the maids aided the fast working doctors. By three o'clock all patients were resting comfortably and the medical profession relaxed under the trees where they drank tall glasses of lemonade.

A young interne followed Bess into the kitchen as she took out a tray of glasses. "You know I have lots to learn," he confided boyishly. "I've never seen a fatal case of ptomaine and I'm curious. May I see the dog?"

"Why, of course," Bess answered in a bewildered way. "Selma, show Dr. Jones poor old Ben. It may help him to save a life sometime."

Selma led the way to the back gate where lay the mangled body of a dog. "There he bane," she said sadly. "I tank they're hit and run drivers. They never stopped the car after they killed him!"

War Crimes Commission In Britain Is Keeping Tab

(By Helen Kirkpatrick)

The war crimes commission, which meets in London, is being kept busy these days as each Allied nation presents its reports. Here, for the sake of record, are a few French incidents:

Case 1—In the town of Ribecourt, March 26, The Germans arrived, accompanied by Georgian soldiers from Gen. Andrei A. Vlassov's (renegade Russian) and by Spanish volunteers of the Blue brigade. They surrounded the town and at 11 o'clock made a house-to-house search.

About 100 persons were arrested and put in trucks. No one saw them again. Eight citizens were lined up and shot, including two garage mechanics, who were accused of letting the Maquisards (members of resistance groups living in the bush) take gasoline. The houses of all those arrested were looted and set afire. Before leaving, the Germans set the adjoining woods afire. In the woods were numerous French people collecting firewood.

Case 2—Brametot, March 26. Twenty-six hostages were shot and their bodies left in a public square for 24 hours.

Case 3—Department of Tarn-et-Garonne. A general clean-up of villages and the arrest of people suspected of feeding the Maquisards. The date, May 2.

Fifteen farms in the outskirts of Montpezat and six in the village itself were looted and burned. The village church was pillaged and its contents burned.

Case 4—Ain department—later in May. The Germans, with the aid of Vichy militia, closed the Trappist monastery of Notre Dames des Dombes, shot two monks and pillaged the monastery.

City Of Commerce

Interesting History Of Caen, Long Connected With English History

Caen, in peacetime one of the main tourist attractions in Normandy, is a city of commerce and industry supporting 61,000 persons, and lies on the Cherbourg-Paris railway, 150 miles west of Paris.

Raised to prominence in the days of William the Conqueror, Caen is the capital of the Department of Calvados, the seat of a Court of Appeal, a Court of Assizes, and of a Prefect. Graced by numerous churches, it has a university with faculties of law, science and letters, an academy, a preparatory school of medicine and pharmacy, and schools of art and music.

William the Conqueror founded the castle later completed by Henry I, and recently used by the French as barracks.

In 1346 Caen was besieged and won by Edward III of England, and again in 1417 was captured by the English, who held it until 1450. The city suffered greatly in the religious wars in France.

Nine miles from the coast, Caen has a floating basin lined with quays and connected with the Orne river. A regular line of steamships carried on trade with Le Havre and New-Haven, which is on the English south coast, and the city has a considerable fishing population.

Its diversified industries include lace-making, timber-sawing, metal-making, machine construction, clothing, weaving, and chemical products. Caen stone has been used extensively for buildings in both France and England.

Egyptian Mummies

A Burial Custom That Is Five Thousand Years Old

Guards at the Royal Ontario Museum report that nine out of ten people visiting the Museum want to see the Egyptian mummies. This exhibit holds more shivers than a combined ghost story and mystery thriller.

Its real importance lies in the fact that it illustrates a burial custom five thousand years old, one unique in the history of mankind. Mummification, an attempt to perpetuate physical life by complicated embalming and ritual, gradually developed in complexity from about 3,000 B.C. to its highest point of elaboration about 1,000 B.C. The burial of objects to be used in the mummy's physical life after death, naturally developed as a consequence.

Practically all of our knowledge of ancient Egyptian daily life comes from the tombs. That this daily life is far more interesting than the mummies themselves you can easily prove by a few hours in the Egyptian galleries. Here the life of the past can be reconstructed from the Museum's collection of jewelry, toilet articles, tools, weapons, furniture, sculpture, stone and decorated clay vases, etc.

Boys Had Their Fun

But Gestapo In Oslo Probably Did Not Appreciate Joke

From Norway came this tale of how some boys unconverted to Hitler's "new order," amused themselves one day.

They placed a bundle of underground newspapers in an Oslo office building lobby, then notified Gestapo plainclothesmen that the papers were to be picked up by patriots. Next they called a Nazi-controlled police station, reported about the papers and suggested that plainclothesmen be sent to retrieve them in order to avoid attracting undue attention.

The ensuing fight between the waiting Gestapo men and the city police was everything that the boys had hoped.

Coal In Arctic Circle

Russians Have Brought New Coal Fields Into Production

Soviet readers were given a glimpse of the new coal fields north of the Arctic circle, which have been brought into production during the days of the war.

The construction of a railroad from Kozhva on the Pechora river northwest to Vorkuta has made possible the exploitation of this new source of supplies, which already has been called the Arctic Donbas. Six additional mines are scheduled to begin production this year, according to an account in Pravda.

Coal from the new fields is going largely to Leningrad, the account indicates. The miners have agreed to send all production exceeding the scheduled programme as a gift to the city.

Secret Weapons

British Scientists Have Found Answer To The Glider Bomb

One of the German secret weapons that looked menacing a short time ago was the glider bomb. In fact it sank the brand-new Italian battleship "Roma" after the Italian capitulation. It has now been announced that British scientists found the answer to this threat. The nature of the new counter-device is, naturally enough, still secret.

SELECTED RECIPES

Nutrition-wise homemakers serve fish regularly. They realize its importance in a dietary constant. Fish, regardless of type, is high in food value. It is rich in vitamins and minerals, and it is one of the best sources of iodine.

A seafood meal is especially valuable now when it comes to saving ration coupons and money. Fortunately, there are fish for every season of the year, and they can be prepared in a variety of ways. For those who claim they don't like fish, a casserole dish calling for cracker crumbs might be just the thing to inspire a change of sentiment. The salty flavor adds zest to fish dishes and makes it tempting even to the countless inland dwellers who are just learning to appreciate seafood.

SCANDINAVIAN FISH PUDDING

- 2½ cups cold cooked fish
- 1 cup cracker crumbs
- 1½ cups scalded milk
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- Few drops onion juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 2 eggs

Flake the fish and put it through a food chopper three times. It should be mashed very fine. In the meantime, soak the crumbs into the scalded milk. Then, add the butter, onion juice, the lemon juice, salt and paprika. Separate the eggs. Beat the whites stiff and the yolks until creamy. Stir the yolks into the first mixture. Add the fish and fold in the egg whites. Turn into a well-buttered bowl or mould. Cover closely and steam an hour-and-a-half, or set in a pan of hot water and bake an hour in a slow oven. Serve with peas, shredded string beans or carrots and peas.

New Fashion Started

British Women Going In For Articles Of Victorian Age

British women are buying up Victorian furniture and bric-a-brac which before the war would only have been found hidden in attics, crowded in parlors of suburban villas or relegated to servants' quarters.

Old-fashioned lockets, fobs, chains and cameos, which a few years ago decorated the blouses of school teachers and maiden gowns, or reposed on the ample stomachs of elderly clubmen, now cost fabulous sums and are worn by debutantes and brides of Mayfair.

Victorianism is in vogue—thank partly to the 100 per cent luxury tax on jewelry and non-essential goods and partly to sentimental reaction against drabness and severity.

In the furniture department of a West End store, heavy Victorian suites are being stripped, limed and touched up with paint and gilt; even cheap sets from maids' bedrooms fetch about 60 pounds. Often the wardrobes are painted with flower designs to lighten them. In the upholstery department piles of heavy silk and damask curtains stand in heaps shoulder high on the floor. Faded though many are, they are still of far better material than can be bought nowadays, and are coupon-free. Victorian jewelry is shown everywhere. Men's "Prince Albert" chains have been hung with ear rings, seals, combs, lockets, tiny silver charms to make bracelets. They cost at least six pounds.

MAKE THAT DARN INVISIBLE

When the hole is large avoid stretching or puckering. Tack a piece of net or veiling over the hole and use it as a foundation for darning. This also strengthens the darn.

1. Begin darning ¼ inch beyond the hole and make the first row equal to the length of the hole.
 2. Increase the length of the rows at each end until the actual hole is reached; then keep straight across the hole and decrease at the ends.
 3. When darning over the hole, take the new thread through all the loops to prevent ladders.
 4. For cross darning begin ¼ inch above the hole and darn lattice fashion over and under darning threads.
- Use this method for woolen stockings, sweaters and knitted articles. Thin places may be darned to strengthen. Darning should show only on the wrong side except for tiny stitches.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

SASKATCHEWAN NOW GUINIA PIG

The CCF party has gained control of the Saskatchewan government and this province will become the guinea pig for CCF doctrines, which will be closely watched by the rest of Canada.

As was the case in Alberta in 1935 when the Social Credit party came into power, extravagant promises have been made by the CCF party in their campaign speeches. Many of these promises will never be carried out. However, the citizens of Saskatchewan have been through hard times prior to the war and they appeared to be seeking protection against the storms of future economic slumps. The CCF appeared to promise the most and so the ballots were marked in their favor. Time will tell whether or not Saskatchewan will be given rural electrification, free medical services, etc., etc.

PROGRESSIVE-CONSERVATIVE LOSS

Despite the comments made by John Bracken following the Saskatchewan election regarding the CCF victory, he must have experienced a sinking feeling in the pit of his stomach when not one of his many candidates secured election. In fact the voters have lost their deposits. To say "I told you so" in regard to the CCF landslide is only whistling in the dark when viewed in the light of Progressive-Conservative progress.

Letters to the Editor

Coleman, 21 June, 1944.
The Editor, "Journal."

Sir: The clothing campaign to aid the citizens of our "adopted" town of Yasinovatsky is now under way. Canvassers and collectors are already at work in the community and well, I am sure, be well received.

Those who have contributions ready, and those who may be misled by our collectors, will help us very much by sending those contributions to me at Central School or to my residence on the school grounds.

Where it is difficult or impossible to send the clothing a call to me at 2491 will enable me to arrange for those special collections. I need not further use your space to emphasize the value and importance of this work—everybody is fully aware of it.

Yours very truly,

David Hoyle,

Chairman, Local Council C-S.F.

CHESTERFIELD DRAW TO TAKE PLACE AT SPORTS FIELD, JULY 1

It has been decided by the curling club executive to make their chesterfield draw at the sports field on the afternoon of July 1. A booth will be set up and the suite placed on display. Tickets will be sold during the morning and several hours in the afternoon, the draw to be made at an hour yet to be determined.

Tickets have received a good sale during the past two months and will be on sale at the sports grounds. Tickets may be secured at any time at the Coleman Hardware where the suite is on display or from any curler.

CANADA'S GREATEST SHOW OPENS JULY 16th AT CALGARY

The year 1944 is proving the greatest in history at the Exhibition grounds in Calgary, for already records have topped at four major events, the Spring Horse Sale, the Bull Show and Sale and the Spring Race Meet; and now, plans are nearing completion for the greatest show of them all, the Calgary exhibition and Stampede, to be held July 16th to 16th. Designed to provide entertainment, relaxation and diversion for more than a quarter of a million visitors, all phases of this year's Stampede, the 59th Annual Exhibition, will equal the shows of former years, with several innovations to make 1944 Stampede a show to be remembered.

TENNIS CLUB NOTES

The local tennis courts are probably the most popular place in town these days, as over one hundred juniors are to be seen swinging their racquets from early morning till late at night. As the season is now in full swing, club president R. Shone asks parents to give "junior" his tennis fees, amounting to $2, so that the club may be able to meet its financial obligations.

Sgt. Major Lorenzo Richards, of Chilliwack, B.C. was the recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Richards.

and Commissioner Tomlinson, of the Alberta Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, presented her with honorary membership in the Canadian Red Cross.

Coming to Coleman in 1923 as principal of Cameron school, Miss Yull organized a branch of the Junior Red Cross and her interest in her organization has never dimmed as the years passed on. The local branch is now the oldest in the province. Hundreds of youngsters have passed through her classes and been trained in Junior Red Cross work. Many now fight on the world's far flung battle fronts.

It is a well deserved award with which she has been presented, a token of the Canadian Red Cross esteem for her unselfish attitude towards her fellowmen. Coleman is proud of her.

'TWS EVER THUS

Last winter ambitious plans were made to build a new curling arena. Practically the entire membership talked about it and also the amount of work which they were prepared to do in its construction. Weeks have passed since work commenced in the project and with the exception of half a dozen workers the rest of the membership have been conspicuous by their absence.

Only by the combined efforts of all can this arena be built and made ready for winter pleasure. Good intentions will certainly never help erect the building. The membership should be out in a body helping this project through to completion. It is not good sportsmanship to sit back and let only a few do the manual work.

Theatre Notes

"Claudia" is the main feature at the Palace this week end, starring Robert Young, Ina Claire and Dorothy McQuire. Based on the Broadway stage character first popularized in magazine stories, Claudia is a humorously sympathetic case of arrested development who has to call upon her tolerant husband to unseat her bank account and budget books. But Claudia finally acquires maturity, through the tragedy of her mother's incurable illness.

At Bellevue this week end it is Dorothy Lamour in Hiding High. Dick Powell and Victor Moore are also in the cast. A technicolor musical of the modern American west. The romance is supplied by a wealthy boy who meets a western girl on a dude ranch.

Honored By Eastern Star on Thursday

Mrs. Sam Bannan was honored last Thursday evening at the regular meeting of Minerva Chapter of the Eastern Star when tribute was paid to her for the honor she had attained for the local chapter in being elected Grand Electa at the recent Grand Chapter held at Lethbridge. She was presented with a sheaf of Gladioli in the emblematic colors.

Following the meeting a social evening was enjoyed for members and visitors. Conventor Mrs. W. L. Rippon had the hall and tables tastefully decorated which added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. Miss E. Beveridge, who has since left to reside at the coast, was honored with a parting gift from the members, the card which accompanied the gift, was passed around the hall and all members wrote their names on it. Mrs. G. Dickson, of Vancouver was also a visitor.

DO YOU KNOW

that 25c buys 12 bullets for the Armed Services?

DO YOU KNOW

that the daily consumption of ammunition of all kinds in this war has exceeded the highest weekly consumption in the last war?

DO YOU KNOW

that the more we use of it and the heavier the fire power of our soldiers, sailors and airmen, the more lives we are saving for a triumphant return home?

DO YOU KNOW

that the cost of rifle ammunition to the Canadian Government is one of the lowest of any of the Allied Nations?

IF YOU DO KNOW

all this think how important your 25c War Savings Stamp purchases will be to yourself, to Canada and to the Armed Services on "S" Day which is to be held on June 30th. Let's all get on the band wagon and do ourselves a favour by being "Bullet Buyers."

Unemployment Insurance Fund

The Unemployment Insurance Fund has gone over the $200,000,000 mark. It was announced today by the Unemployment Insurance Commission that the Fund which is made up of contributions by employees, employers and the Dominion Government, had reached the total of $200,811,213 on May 9th.

The Fund has been accumulating since July 1, 1941, when contributions by employers and employees started. Under the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Government adds one fifth to the total amount contributed by employers and employees.

Amendments to the Act passed at the last session of Parliament raised the "ceiling" from $2,000 to $2,400 and also provided for including persons in certain specified wage categories even when total earnings exceeded $2,400 per annum. This was a factor in increasing the number of persons in the higher wage categories to whom the Act applies.

On the first of next July, collection of Unemployment Insurance contributions will have been in operation in Canada for three years.

Cigarette Fund Notes

Dear Sirs: Received three parcels of cigarettes today. Many thanks.

Dear Sirs: Many thanks for the January issue of cigs. just received. The weather is nice and hot now, I am kept very busy at present but do not mind it at all. Sure be glad to get home though. Please thank everyone who makes it possible for me to get these cigs each month.—Archie Wragg.

Dear Comrades: Many thanks for the parcel of cigs. received and as usual they are a most welcome gift. Hello to all and we will do our best to finish it off this summer.—L. A. Caroe.

Dear Sirs: Thanks a lot for the cigarettes. I haven't missed any yet and hope you keep up the good work.—R. Jenkins.

Dear Sirs: Received your smokes O.K. Thanks a million.—Roy Garrett.

Dear Sirs: Received cigs. Many thanks.—Sgt. A. Celli.

Dear Sirs: I received 4 parcels of cigarettes which you have sent me. Three parcels with 300 and one parcel with 600. I was very pleased to receive them and I thank you very much for being so kind to me.—Milan Rucka.

Dear Sirs: Received another carton of cigarettes for which I am very grateful. I've received a letter from Jim Lloyd over here but haven't been able to meet him yet. I hope to soon.

The weather over her now is swell. The old sun really shines in this part of the world and by the time summer ends we'll all look like niggers instead of Canadians.—Roy Garrett.

Inflation and Deflation... Evil Companions

Past wars have always brought some degree of inflation.

Goods were scarce... Prices and wages sky rocketed to unnatural heights.

Then one day the war stopped...

In due time goods became plentiful again.

Scarcity prices could no longer be demanded and "spiralling" prices went "pop" and came down with a bang.

people stopped buying because they thought prices would go still lower merchandise dropped in value—retailers went bankrupt factories closed and unemployment followed farms were foreclosed distress was general and deflation was in the saddle.

That is why in this war prices are controlled—so that they will not ruin buyers in a rise or sellers in a slump.

Price ceilings—wage and salary controls—rationing—Victory Bonds—increased taxation—are all part of a grand strategy to head off inflation—thus preventing Deflation.

PREVENTION OF INFLATION IS THE BEST PROTECTION AGAINST DEFLATION

The English Channel

A NARROW STRIP OF WATER which upon more than one occasion has changed the course of history, was a vitally important factor in the Allied invasion of Europe. The English Channel has been described as "an important body of water which joins the Atlantic Ocean with the North Sea, and separates France from England." Its entire area is about 24,000 square miles, and its width varies from twenty-one miles, at the Straits of Dover, to over one hundred miles at the Western end. Frequently disturbed by storms, its waters are said to be the most treacherous in the world. More favorable weather is usually experienced during the spring and summer months, and this was an important consideration in the selection of the now famous "D" Day. For some years consideration was given to a proposal for building a railway tunnel under the Channel between France and Britain, but it was finally rejected by the Imperial Defence Council in 1924.

Delay Helped Allied Cause

It was the English Channel which stopped the march of Hitler's victorious armies in 1940, and helped to save Britain from the fate which befell the greater part of Europe at that time. It provided an obstacle so formidable to the Germans that they could not seize the strategic advantage of an immediate invasion following the British disaster at Dunkirk. This delay proved of invaluable help to the Democratic cause, and without doubt helped considerably to change the course of the war at that time. It also put difficulties in the way of the Allied liberation of Europe, but the vast resources of the United Nations have at length been able to provide the means of making a successful channel crossing, and of pouring over it vast hordes of men and materials. This operation is undoubtedly the greatest military achievement of its kind which has ever been accomplished.

Invasions In Other Times

Military experts who planned the recent landings in Europe were not the first to attempt such an undertaking. Julius Caesar is said to have put ashore ten thousand men when he invaded Britain in 55 B.C. William, Duke of Normandy, landed an army in England in 1066, and in 1688 William of Orange brought a fleet of seven hundred transports across the Channel, carrying nearly sixteen thousand troops. Napoleon wanted to invade England in 1803, and had worked out an elaborate plan. Lord Nelson, however, prevented him from ever carrying it out. During the First Great War, great quantities of men and materials were transported from Britain to France, but never before have operations been carried out in the Channel under conditions such as exist in this war. In dividing Britain from the continent of Europe, the English Channel has clearly had a great influence on the course of events since earliest times.

Not Just Drudgery

British Physiologist Gets New Slant On Art Of Housekeeping

One of Britain's famed physiologists has discovered, at the age of 77, that housewives have a place high among the artisans of this world that their work is not just drudgery but a thing of skill. The famed physiologist is Sir Leonard Hill. With his wife he lives in suburban London and now has reached the conclusion that scientists are deplorably ignorant about housekeeping.

It happened this way. He and his wife lost their gardener and maids and tended for themselves in their nine-roomed house. Sir Leonard worked out a schedule of duty and rest for his day, lasting from 6:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m.

His conclusion at the end of six weeks' effort: "I have spent my whole life doing skilled acts. Only now have I discovered that housekeeping and housework consists of doing one skilled act after the other all day—and sometimes all evening as well."

SYNTHETIC RUBBER

Dr. Gustav Egloff, of Chicago, president of the American Institute of Chemists and director of research for a United States oil company, said that synthetic rubber "is here to stay and the post war era will find the synthetic being employed in thousands of uses."

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—I am going away to a summer resort for two months, and in view of the housing shortage in this district, I want to rent my home while I'm away. I have never done so before. I suppose there is just so much rent I am entitled to charge a tenant.

A.—Yes, there is. You should apply to the rentals office of the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province for a fixation of your rent. The rentals on summer cottages are also subject to the same rental restrictions as other properties and are, therefore, not to be rented at a higher rate than that charged for a corresponding period in 1941.

Q.—I saw a slack outfit displayed in a shop window the other day. The price wasn't shown in the window, but, when I went inside, I found there wasn't even a price tag on the garment. This seems to be poor protection for the buyer—why, the clerk could charge whatever he pleased depending, I suppose, on how prosperous you looked. Isn't there something ruling against this kind of selling practice?

A.—There is, yes. A Prices Board regulation became effective on June 1 to cover the placing of price tags by retailers on men's, women's and children's clothing and furnishings. This regulation also covers all types of footwear.

Q.—Now that we are well along in Ration Book 4, what's the use of keeping Ration Book 3? Couldn't we just tear out the sheet of "F" canning sugar coupons, and hand the book over to salvage?

A.—No, you could not. In the first place, handing any kind of loose ration coupons to grocers is illegal. But even after you use your canning sugar coupons, you should keep your old ration book. It contains meat coupons and other coupons that might be required later on.

Q.—I am going to a summer hotel for ten days this month. Will I have to take my ration book? A.—No, summer hotels do not require ration books from their guests unless they stay for a period of two weeks or more. For every two-week period the owner or manager must detach 1 sugar coupon, 1 tea-coffee coupon, 2 butter coupons and 1 preserves coupon from a guest's ration book.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Has Imposing Name

But Londoners Prefer To Call British Prime Minister "Winnie"

What is Premier Churchill's real name? The question puzzles a good many people and very few know the answer.

The Prime Minister usually signs himself "Winston S. Churchill." But the Court Circular, a stickler for accuracy, always describes him as "The Right Honorable Winston Spencer-Churchill" because "Spencer-Churchill" is the name of the Marlborough family to which he belongs.

Actually, he has another name which he never uses—Leonard. So if you want to know how the United Kingdom Premier should be fully and formally described in legal documents the wording would be "The Right Honorable Winston Leonard Spencer-Churchill." But Londoners prefer to call him "Winnie"—Ottawa Citizen.

Caring For Refugees

British And American Governments Establish Centre In Morocco

The British and American governments have established a refugee centre in a former U.S. Army camp near Fedala on the Moroccan coast to care for the homeless transferred from similar camps in Spain. The refugees were interned in Spain early in the war when they fled before the Nazi drives into Poland, France and the low countries. Only a handful have arrived so far, but arrangements have been completed for the transfer of 800 and the total may reach 2,000. The project has been placed under the United Nations Rehabilitation Administration for administrative purposes.

Receive Awards

Two Western Canadians Are Honored For Their Gallantry

D-day brought awards for gallantry to two members of the R.C.A.F., both hailing from western Canada.

The Distinguished Flying Cross goes to FO. Lorenza John Bateman, of Winnipeg, and the Distinguished Flying Medal goes to Sgt. Robert Alexander Edie, of Langham, Sask.

Bateman, who was born at Humboldt, and who was commissioned in 1942, is cited for "unusually displaying a high degree of skill and courage in the course of attacks on the enemy." "Recently," the writ continues, "he executed a most determined attack on a U-boat. Despite intense opposing fire, the attack was pressed home with great skill, and resulted in the destruction of the vessel. This officer has completed many sorties and has set an excellent example of keenness and devotion to duty."

Sgt. Edie, 22-year-old rear gunner, earned the D.F.M. for an exploit in April, 1944, when the R.C.A.F. posted the Friedrichshafen. "When nearing the target area the aircraft was attacked by two Junkers 88's. Coolly and skillfully, Sgt. Edie gave necessary evading directions to the pilot and then brought his guns to bear on the attackers, one of which was shot down and the other driven off. Some time later he drove off another fighter which attempted to close in. His good shooting coolness and co-operation played a worthy part in the success of the operation. This airman has completed many sorties against well defended targets."

Sgt. Edie is a farmer in civil life.

Making History

King George Meets Descendant Of Former Famous Prime Minister

An ordinary seaman whom King George found casting an anchor during his recent inspection of the British home fleet turned out to be Erskine William Gladstone, a descendant of the Prime Minister in Queen Victoria's day. "My great grandfather used to see a lot of your great grandfather," said the King. "Meeting you here is history, and I wonder what they would think of it."

SMILE AWHILE

The Irish foreman found one of his men sleeping in the shade:

"Sleep on, you lazy loot," he said, "sleep on. So long as you sleep, you've got a job; but when you wake up you're out of work."

A husband and wife came to a bank to open a joint account. Being in a hurry, the man made out his signature card and left.

"Let me see," an official of the bank said to the wife. "This is to be a joint account, is it not?" "That's right," smiled the wife. "Deposit for him—checking for me."

Freddie—Poor old Tom fell into a fortune last year.

Frankie—Why poor? "He fell into it so hard that he went right through it."

Recruit—The sergeant is always picking holes in me. Corporal—Well, you came here to be drilled, didn't you?

Doctor—Hurry, nurse. We have an emergency patient in the operating room who lost his balance, and...

Nurse—Maybe he has one in some other bank.

A preacher had a brother, a medical doctor, whom he very much resembled. A gentleman met the latter one day and said:

"You preached a fine sermon on Sunday, Doctor," to which he replied:

"I am not the brother that preaches; I am the one that practices."

Mrs. Blow—How did you ever get a reference saying you were a perfect lady's maid? "Maid—I worked for a perfect lady, once."

The two girls were exchanging confidences over the luncheon table.

"What did the Sergeant say when you told him you'd be a sister to him?"

"Why the rascal had the nerve to ask me to lend him a dollar so he could take another girl to a movie."

Mistress—One of these references you have given me says that you are aloof, untidy, careless and dishonest.

Cook—Is that all? ... Nothing about my puff pastry?

Volunteer service in three countries is the distinguished record of Pte. Williamina (correct) Dow of the C.W.A.C. Back in her native Scotland she did social service work among England's evacuated families before the blitz. In 1940 she came to the United States and lectured to American service clubs on post-war Britain. She was employed as secretary to a doctor in Denver, Colorado. Pte. Dow enlisted in the C.W.A.C. in Dec. 1943, and is at present attached to the Corps of Military Staff Clerks, Winnipeg, Man. She is the daughter of Mrs. Nessie Dow of Kinross, Scotland.

PERSONALITY
Do you know what a "Cwoot" is? If not, don't worry about it, for neither do a lot of other people. The word itself does not have even a nodding acquaintance with Churchill's basic English, but it does merit a special place in the newly coined lingo of CWAC. Row. To CWACs, a Cwoot might mean a pet, a panda, a doll or any number of things, but always it is something they cherish. Some of the girls got their pets when they first joined the Army and have kept them with them ever since. Not only do the girls like to have their Cwoots near them, but they also like to see them get ahead in the Army. It is quite the thing to see a Cwoot propped atop an Army cot with one or more stripes to say nothing of service chevrons or trade badges. Nearly all good CWACs have a Cwoot, have you?

MASCOT
Do you know what a "Cwoot" is?

Drill
The smart stepping young ladies in the C.W.A.C. at Fort Osborne Barracks, Winnipeg, are busy with precision drill and regimentation these warmer days. Familiarizing themselves with a new routine which takes them away from typewriters, filing cabinets and lunch counters, they enjoy getting into the fresh air to march and counter march to the orders of C.S.M. Agnes Johnson, Fort William, Ont. Twice each week these girls stream from offices, canteens and messes to form into platoons and companies and spend an hour on the parade square following brisk commands with smartness and precision. Like their brothers, in khaki, the girls appear on regular parades—Pay Parade being the most popular. Drilling, a prime requisite of Army training, has "caught on" with these girl soldiers for it comes as a change from their regular duties and familiarizes them more with "Army Life."

RECREATIONS
"A little place in the country," a pipe dream for many, has become a reality for members of the C.W.A.C. with the announcement that two summer cottages have been made available for personnel in Kingston and Ottawa. Located in Collin's Bay, Ont., and Dann's Lake, Que., they offer CWACs on weekend leave a real vacation, with swimming and boating at the front door. Use of the Collin's Bay cottage was made possible by the Kingston War Services, under the direction of Dr. F. W. Attack. Dann Lake is the summer home of Mr. Joseph Richardson of Ottawa.

FASHION—

Unruly locks are less of a problem to CWACs now that C.W.A.C. Beauty Parlours are a recognized Army establishment. The volunteer in charge of Miss Canada in khaki's hair-do, knows exactly what is required by C.W.A.C. authorities. She knows too that underneath the khaki serge beats a feminine heart, and she sets her styles accordingly. Some of the answers have been found in braids, rolls, or even up-sweeps. The feather bob has long been acclaimed as the "CWAC's Choice." Boyish bobs are discouraged as unfeminine and unnatural. The "hulo roll" is very popular, being regimental yet glamorous and leaves the wearer feeling both feminine and at peace with Army regulations. As time goes by, women in khaki are learning the art of looking softly attractive while regimentally correct—it's a neat trick!

CONFIDENCE IS EXPRESSED THAT BRITAIN WILL FIND MEANS TO DEAL WITH THE ROBOT PLANE

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND—German commentators can talk all they like about the "terror stricken" British populace, but typical reaction here to Hitler's robot plane is almost a feeling of relief mixed with confidence that means soon will be found to render it as innocuous as the once-dreaded magnetic mine.

They can have no possible effect on the outcome of the war. What they've seen of them has led Britons to believe this unyielding of the dawning of the German arsenal is for propaganda purposes that there aren't enough of them to cause widespread damage.

Hour after hour the robot explosive planes streak across the June skies by ones and twos, yet life's tempo here never faltered.

Reports of hospitals being wrecked, houses flattened and neighbors killed left people a little more determined to see that Germany's unconditional surrender is hastened.

Editorial comments in London newspapers expressed confidence that the new weapon would soon be mastered by British scientists.

CANADIAN TROOPS

Their Contribution To The Vast And Important Assault On France

ARMY HEADQUARTERS. Somewhere in Britain.—Lt. Gen. Crerar told correspondents that it will be difficult if not impossible to exaggerate the importance of the Canadian contribution to the vast and decisive assault on France.

The commander made the statement at the conclusion of a comprehensive off-the-record conference with Allied war correspondents and gave permission for this portion of his remarks to be reported.

"I do not need to emphasize the eagerness with which I and all ranks of the Canadian army, wherever located, have been following the fortunes of all the forces engaged in the assault landing and the pride which we share in the magnificent part played by Canadians.

"We knew beforehand how well these specially-trained Canadian troops would carry out a difficult and vitally-important task.

"The enemy certainly shares that knowledge now.

"I believe that when the time comes that the complete story of the preparations and plan for this vast and decisive Allied assault landing can be revealed the importance of the Canadian contribution to its success will be fully realized.

"It will be difficult if not impossible to exaggerate it.

"During the last year in Sicily and Italy and now in France, Canadian troops have shown their great and inherited qualities. You can count on it they will continue to do so until the end and will spare themselves nothing to ensure that final victory suffers no delay."

GERMANY PREPARES

Makes Preparations For War On Her Own Soil

STOCKHOLM.—The Stockholm Morgenthaunders said that the Germans are preparing for war on their own soil and that instructions are being issued to the population on how to combat airborne Allied troops.

In a despatch carried under an Ankara dateline but actually quoting a broadcast by the anti-Nazi radio station Atlantic, the Morgenthaunders said residents of Germany's coastal cities have been told they will be warned by special alarm signals in the events of an Allied paratroop or glider landing in their area.

The newspaper said the civilian population of Bremen has been instructed to evacuate to the Baltic seacoast if and when the invasion occurs.

CANADIAN NAVY

Assuming Large Portion Of Convoy Work In The Atlantic

OTTAWA.—Canada has assumed "considerably increased responsibilities" in North Atlantic escort work, Navy Minister Macdonald said in the commons a few hours after announcing that the frigate Prince Rupert had helped to destroy a German submarine and captured 14 prisoners.

Mr. Macdonald did not elaborate on his reference to increased responsibilities but it was believed the Canadian navy had assumed a major portion of convoy duty in the Atlantic now that virtually all available British and American warships were needed to keep open communications across the English channel. It previously had been announced that Canada was responsible for 45 per cent of escort duty.

Referring to Canadian naval participation in the invasion, the navy minister said that out of 100 Canadian ships involved only a few landing craft had been lost and of 10,000 naval personnel participating losses had been "negligible".

MOSCOW.—Premier Stalin praised the Allies for their invasion of France, declaring that "the history of war does not know any such undertaking so broad in conception, so grandiose in scale, and so masterly in execution."

Stalin described Hitler as "an hysteric" who bragged for two years that he would cross the channel but never risked the attempt. He also pointed out Napoleon failed in his plan to cross the channel and conquer Britain.

Canucks Visited By Mr. Churchill

THE KING MAKES SURPRISE VISIT TO NORMANDY AND IS CHEERED BY THE TROOPS

ABOARD THE CRUISER ARETHUSA

—The King visited the Normandy beachheads and lunched with Gen. Montgomery at advanced headquarters.

The King crossed on this cruiser and landed from an amphibious "duck".

Before returning safely to a south coast port, he conferred the C.B.E. on Maj-Gen. Keller, commander of the Canadian 3rd division, in an open-air investiture less than six miles from the front line.

The last time the King was in France was in 1939, when he toured the Maginot line and did not see any fighting.

It is four centuries since a reigning sovereign of Britain has set foot on Norman soil to visit his armies and everyone in the group around the King was conscious of the significance of the occasion.

The King landed at a beach just west of Colleville, where the Canadians had stormed ashore on D-day. As he rode in a motor launch from the Arethusa, which led the line of bombarding ships on D-day—six-inch shells from the British cruiser Hawkins tore overhead in engaging a land target 10 miles away. The salutes were the first shot the King actually had seen fired at the enemy in this war.

Two British destroyers, the Scourge and Urania, escorted the Arethusa while Spitfires, circling overhead, provided continuous cover from the moment of sailing until the King's return home.

Buses piped the King on board the Arethusa and 10 minutes later we were underway for France.

There was a fresh breeze whipping the sea and the King had to "jump for it" over the cruiser's side into the motor launch. We anchored about three miles out and again from the motor launch the King "jumped for it" into the waiting duck.

The visit had been kept secret. Working parties of troops on the beach looked up as Montgomery's open staff car drove past slowly, recognized the King, and ran alongside cheering.

With an escort of British and American military police, armed with Tommy guns, the King's car passed along the straight Normandy road, through the little villages, Graves, Sur Mer and Banville, which were in German hands only a few days ago.

Shells had wiped out many of the houses, and big bulldozers were busy widening the roads and filling in craters.

Montgomery took the King straight to his advanced headquarters.

While he and the King sat at lunch, shells screamed high overhead, and the chateau walls shook with the thud of heavy explosions.

After lunch, the King held an open-air investiture in the chateau grounds.

Seven officers and men, headed by Keller, were decorated. Some 400 troops, Canadians among them, formed up in the three sides of a square to watch the ceremony.

REFUGEES FROM FRANCE

LONDON.—The first civilians from Normandy have arrived from the battle areas and found quarters in big Victoria houses in a quiet square.

FIGHTING STRENGTH

Will Be Poured Into France To Make Sure Of Victory

WASHINGTON.—A promise from Gen. Eisenhower that fighting strength would be poured into France, not only through the present beachhead but "through others yet to come" was the highlight of revelations made by President Roosevelt at a press conference.

This intimation that other assaults upon Nazi Europe are pending was contained in a communication received by the president from the supreme Allied commander.

Eisenhower said the "first great obstacle" had been surmounted and, "satisfactory as is the progress of this battle to date it is but a mere beginning to the tremendous struggles that must follow before final victory is achieved."

Vast as these operations were, he added, they were "only a part of the far larger pattern of a combined assault against the fortress of Germany by the great Russian armies from the east and our forces from the Mediterranean."

Bombers Play Important Role On West Front

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS.

"I wish to be regarded as Ike's shadow, and nothing else whatever." Behind these implicit instructions of Air Chief Marshal Tedder lies the reason the name of the deputy commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force has appeared only once in communications since D-day. But to the air chief marshal, infected with the Eisenhower doctrine, goes a tremendous share of the credit for the perfect interplay of the British, Canadian and American air offensive against Europe.

Periodically the deputy commander meets all the air chiefs and Generals Brereton and Spatz, Chief Marshals Leigh-Mallory and Harris and Air Marshal Coningham to co-ordinate a single plan for the bomber command of the R.A.F., Eighth and Ninth Air Forces coastal command. Their work is not the sum total of individual efforts but the several facets of a single effort, each used in accordance with the development of the plan.

Behind the air news lies the significant fact of the partial reappearance of the Luftwaffe and the discovery by photographic reconnaissance of some 500 fighter airfields close to the battle area. Hence, heavies and fighter-bombers are hurled against these fields to "throw bricks through the windows as the boys unpack."

What 500 fighters might have achieved is evident from the fact the R.A.F. had less than this number to operate in their successful defence in the Battle of Britain. So all fields identified have been thoroughly bombed and the strategic attacks against Berlin, Cologne and Gelsenkirchen fit into the same pattern. As the Germans move their fighter cover to the western front, the bomber command tear loose over the naked industrial regions within the Reich, spreading destruction and placing the Germans in an impossible dilemma. Gelsenkirchen is an added headache to Hitler since it is the great source of synthetic fuel, and Field Marshal von Rundstedt is obviously deficient in this respect.

Meanwhile reconnaissance shows Rommel's engineers are making scarcely any attempt to repair the blasted bridges of the Seine river. Some pontoon affairs have been thrown across but a high ranking officer at supreme headquarters remarked that "pontoon bridges are useless unless you have air superiority."

The mystery now is the reason the German heavy bombs, hundreds of which are known to be held between Caen and Germany, have not been thrown into the battle. It is believed here German defence is in a position of a blind man caving to the failure of their air reconnaissance.

I saw the first pictures of the Allied invasion at supreme headquarters, and nothing is more obvious than the way the Germans missed the bus by failing to bomb the tremendous targets in the south of England as the invasion forces were mustered to the attack.

FLY MERCY SHIPS

Canadians Take Wounded From Normandy To British Hospitals

A FORWARD BRITISH AIRFIELD.—Six Canadian soldiers were among the first battle casualties evacuated by air from the front line in Normandy to emergency hospitals in England by the R.A.F. transport command.

Less than two hours after a big transport plane lifted them from a casualty clearing station on an airfield within range of snipers' guns the men were in bed in a tented air evacuation centre in the English countryside.

About 60 Canadians at this station will fly the mercy ships. They include Flying Officers Floyd Henry, Gray, Sask., and Keith Radie, Vancouver, and PO. Claude Roy, Regina.

U.S. Air Force In Destructive Raid On Japan

WASHINGTON.—Japan was bombed by huge new planes, the B-29, and congress heard that Tokyo suffered "great destruction."

The war department disclosed that the long-secret flying giants had gone into action. The announcement said:

"B-29 super Fortresses of the United States Army Air Force 20th bomber command bombed Japan."

To this was added some time later that the planes flew to the attack from the China-India-Burma theatre.

Then Representative Joseph Starnes (Dem., Ala.) arose in the house of representatives to tell his colleagues that the target of the raid was Tokyo proper. A good source informed him, he said, that a large number of American planes were causing "great destruction" in Tokyo.

It was the second American bombing of Japan, but the first announcement of action by the B-29's.

Representative Carter Manasco (Dem., Ala.) said the war department advised him the B-29's "bombed several large cities" on the mainland of Japan.

Thus opened a new phase in the war a phase in which fleets of the world's most formidable planes will strike at the enemy anywhere on earth at the command of one man—Gen. Arnold.

Few details of this first mission by the new planes, twice as heavy and one-third larger than the Flying Fortress—were disclosed in a war department announcement.

By contrast, the Doolittle raid affair. The Doolittle raiders, flying twin-engined medium bombers, took off from a carrier and most were forced to crash-land in China. Some fell into the hands of the Japanese who announced they had executed eight of them.

With the announcement "the war department disclosed some hitherto secret information about the B-29's and revealed the organization of the 20th air force as a roving, globe-circling command headed by Gen. Arnold.

The plane has a wing-span of 142 feet, is 98 feet long and 27 high. Performance details were withheld except that it "carries the greatest load faster, farther and higher than any other airplane in existence," and its speed compares favorably with that of the fastest fighter planes.

On the point of range, Gen. Arnold said some months ago that the "Super-Fortress" would be capable of flying across the Atlantic and back non-stop.

BITTER INCREASE

EDMONTON.—Boost of 11.3 per cent in Alberta creamery butter production during May has more than offset earlier declines, so that total for five months now shows a gain of 1½ per cent over same period of last year, said D. H. McCullum, dairy commissioner.

WAR CORRESPONDENT

LONDON.—William Boss, former Ottawa newspaperman who has just received his honorable discharge in Italy from the Canadian army, has become a war correspondent with The Canadian Press. Boss, 28 years old, will team up with Doug Amaron and Doug How, attached to the 1st Canadian Corps in Italy.

You won't get to Berlin in an Armchair!

If Canada and the United Nations had depended upon "Armchair Soldiers" to fight this war, the Nazis and Japs would have grabbed this country long ago.

There is no "Royal Road" to Berlin. It's fighting all the way and Canada's Army needs every man it can get. That's why, today, you should volunteer for overseas service. You'll need months of intensive training to make you fighting-fit.

Don't be a stay-at-home and let the other fellow do it. Get into a man's uniform with the G.S. badge of honour on your sleeve. If we're going to win this war, we'll have to do more than just read about it in the papers.

So, come on you fellows, the good old army has got to finish the job!
